Martin College

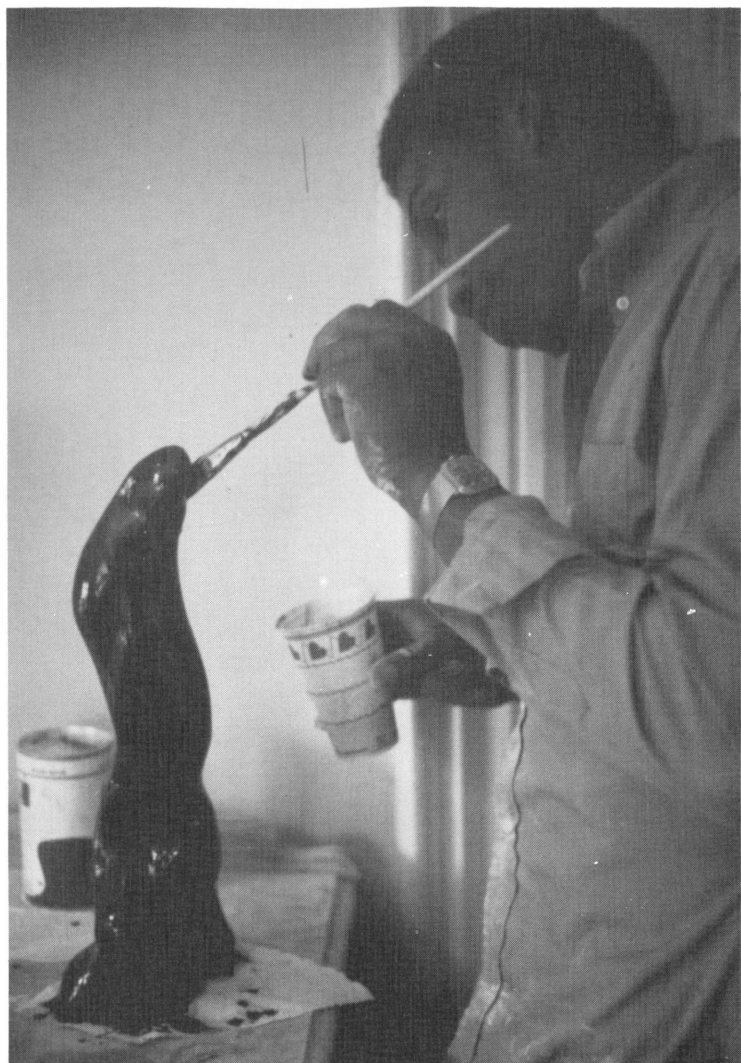

Pulaski, Tennessee

Unity . . .

Like a fine machine composed of intricate parts all working together for a common goal, one part requiring the cooperation of the others to function, but each part free to move on its own . . .

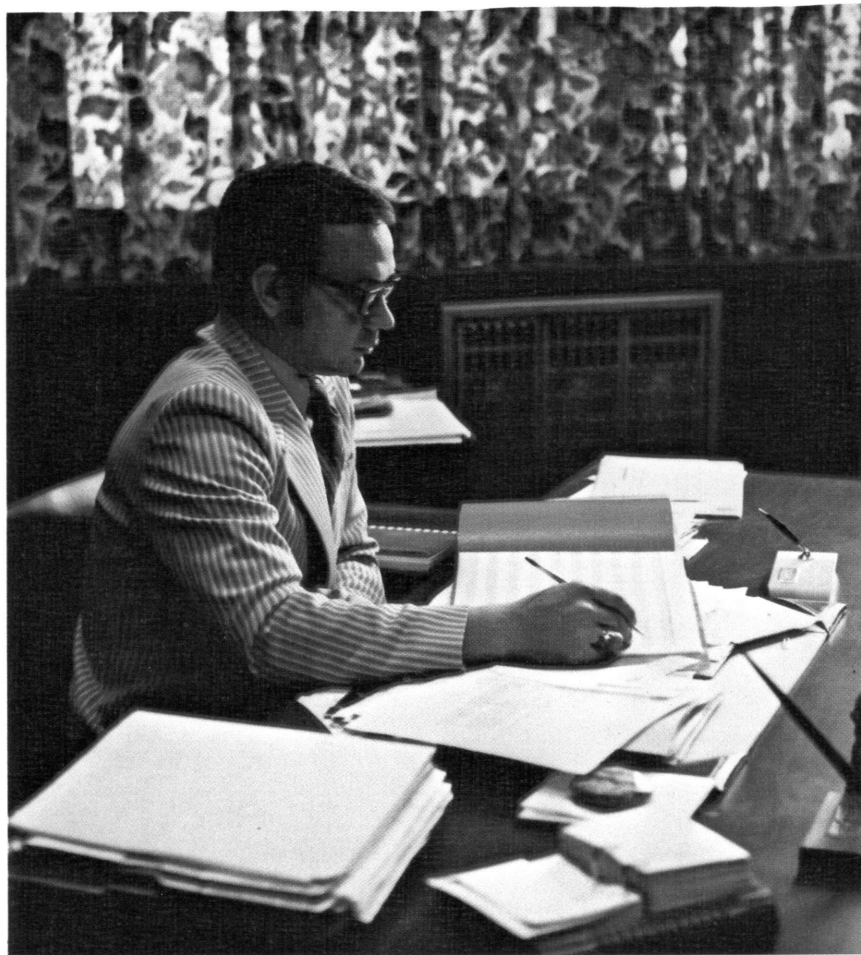

Students take part in class and leisure time activities . . .
 Athletes combine individual excellence with team effort . . .
 Faculty lays foundation for academic year.

Motion . . .

forming a framework that moves with the times, yet relying on tradition . . .

Tom E. Gray assumes position as new president . . . Howard Hanger Trio involves students in Religious Emphasis Days . . . Students participate in unique learning experience . . . Freshmen carry on tradition of the beanie . . . Friends share.

Stimulation . . .

providing transportation of minds and spirits to a higher plane . . .

Exceptional understanding exists among students, faculty, and administration.

Response . . .

propelling itself through involvement . . .

Discovering yourself, and becoming what you are . . .

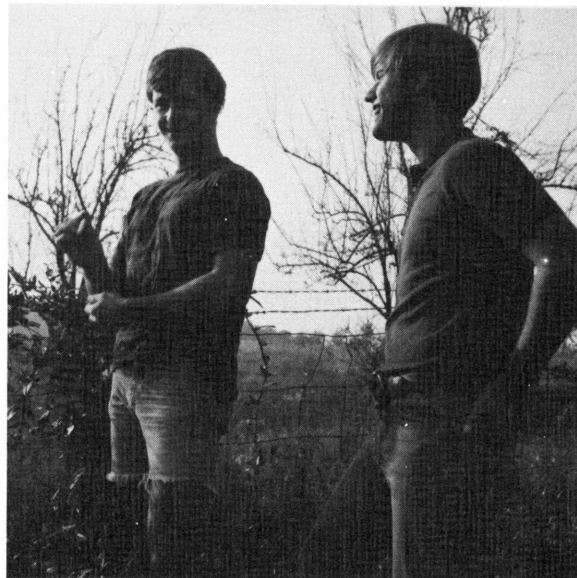

Warmth . . .

fueling itself with a feeling of friendliness . . .

Come, let us have fellowship one with another.

Initiative . . .

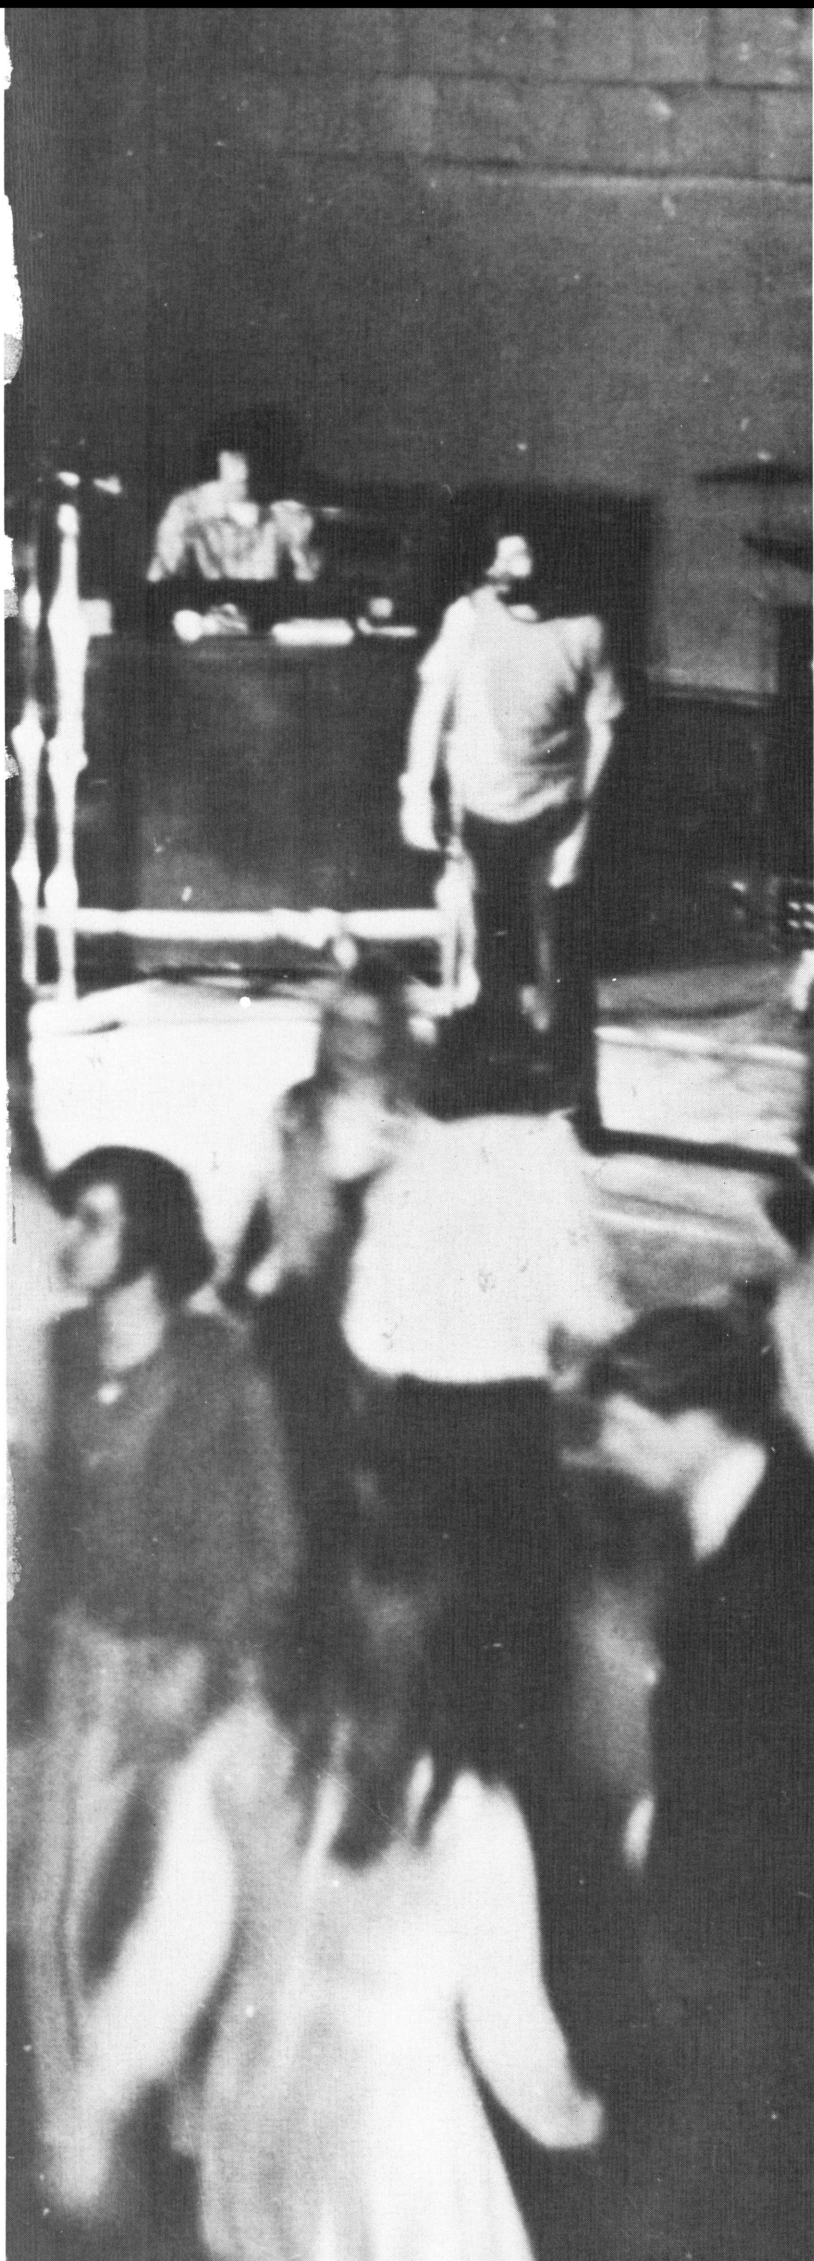

performing at its highest potential . . .

Administration And Faculty

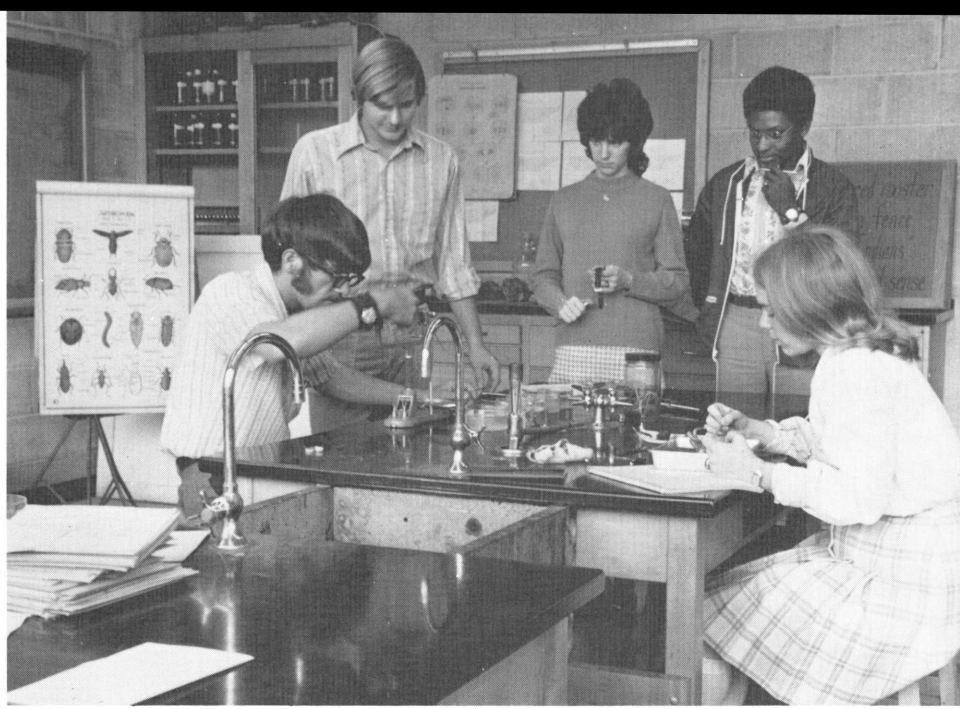

After the daily routine of meetings and conferences the faculty and administration take time for relaxation to attend the New Student Reception, Kiddie Party and Nickell Picnic.

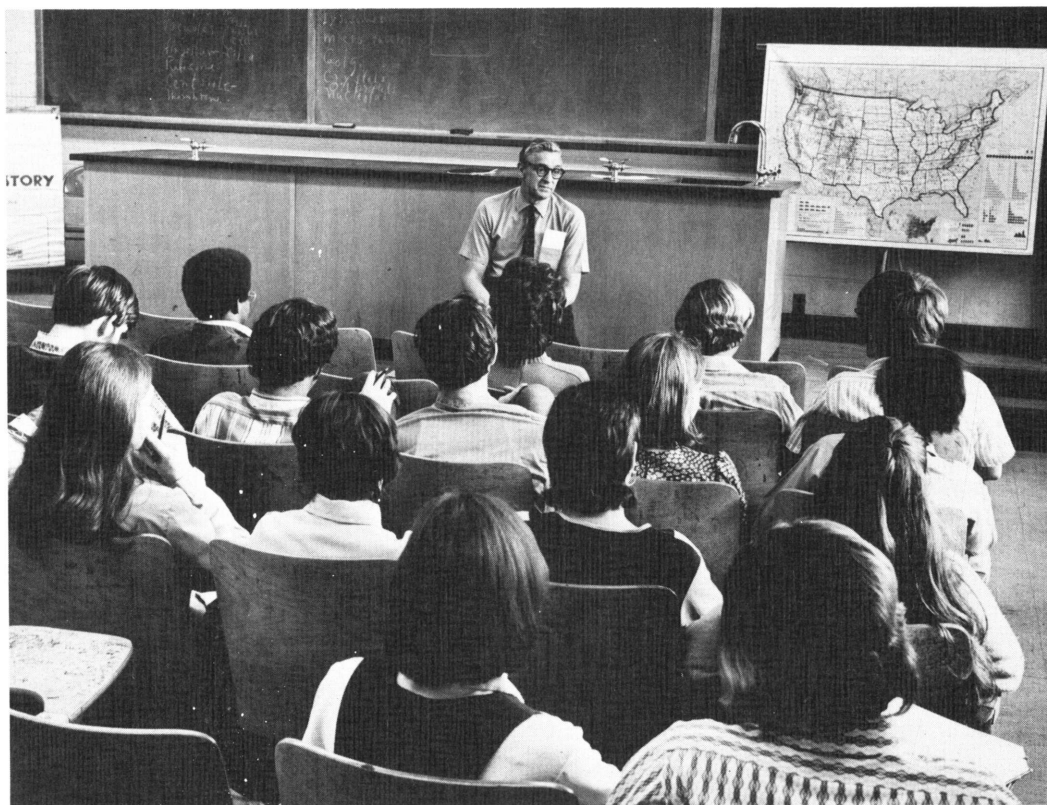

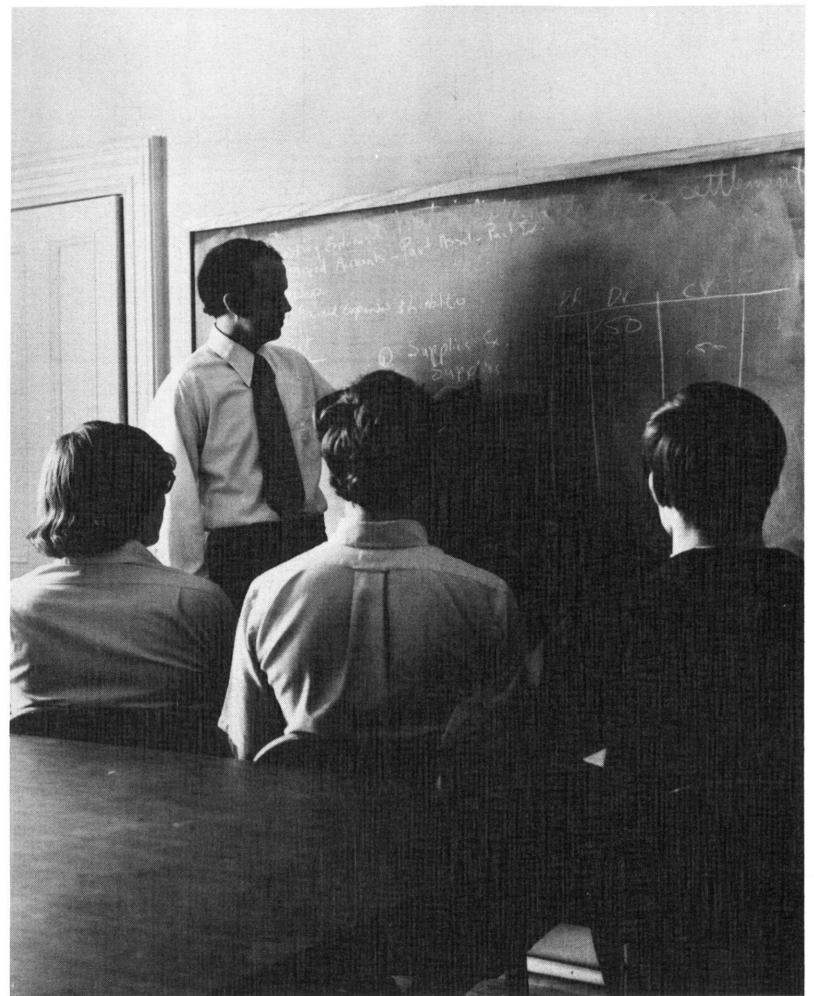

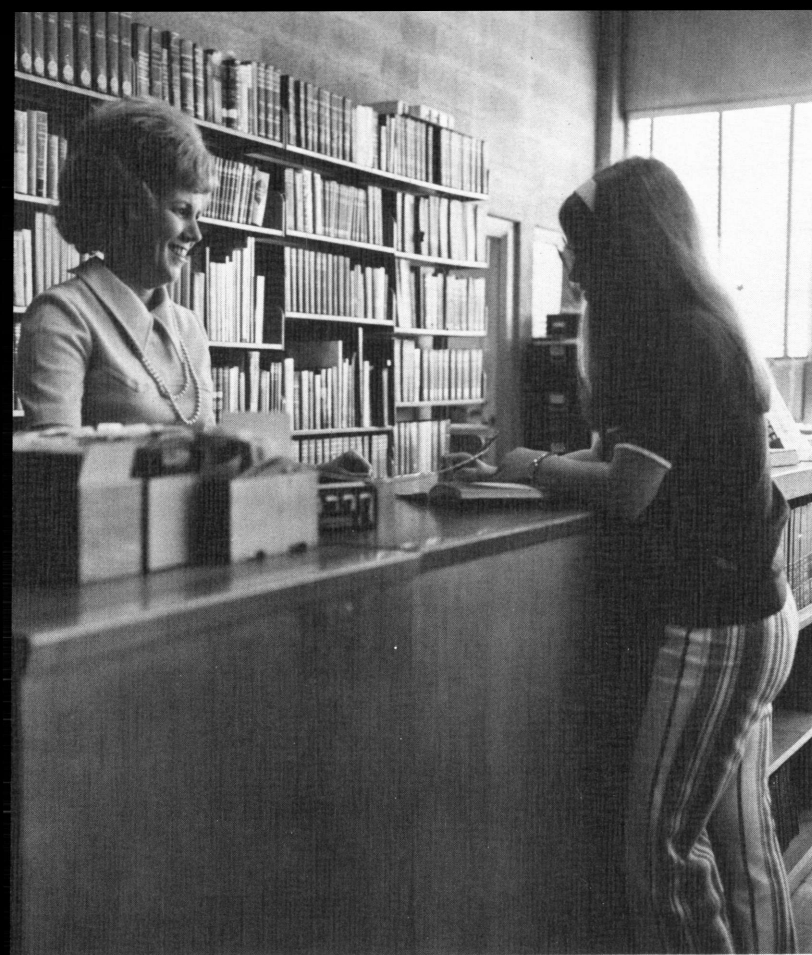

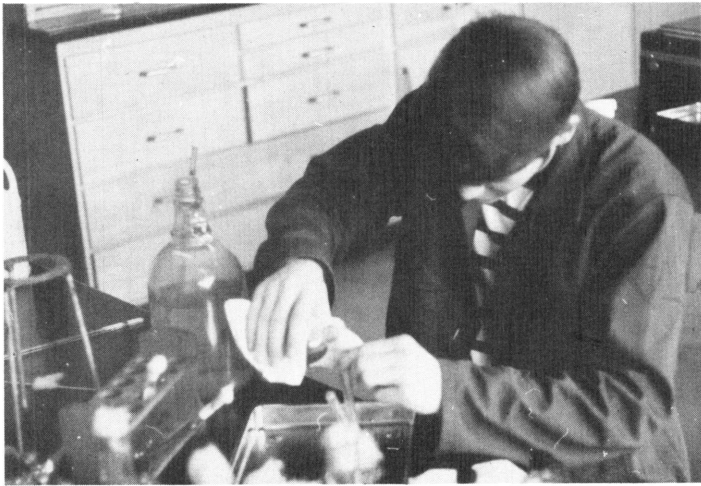

One of the major concepts underlying the Martin program is that a student is not regarded as a mere recipient of knowledge but a participant of significant dimension in the process of his own education.

The instructor is not considered a transmitter of knowledge but an academic catalyst. Emphasis is placed on the development of human potential rather than the dissemination of information.

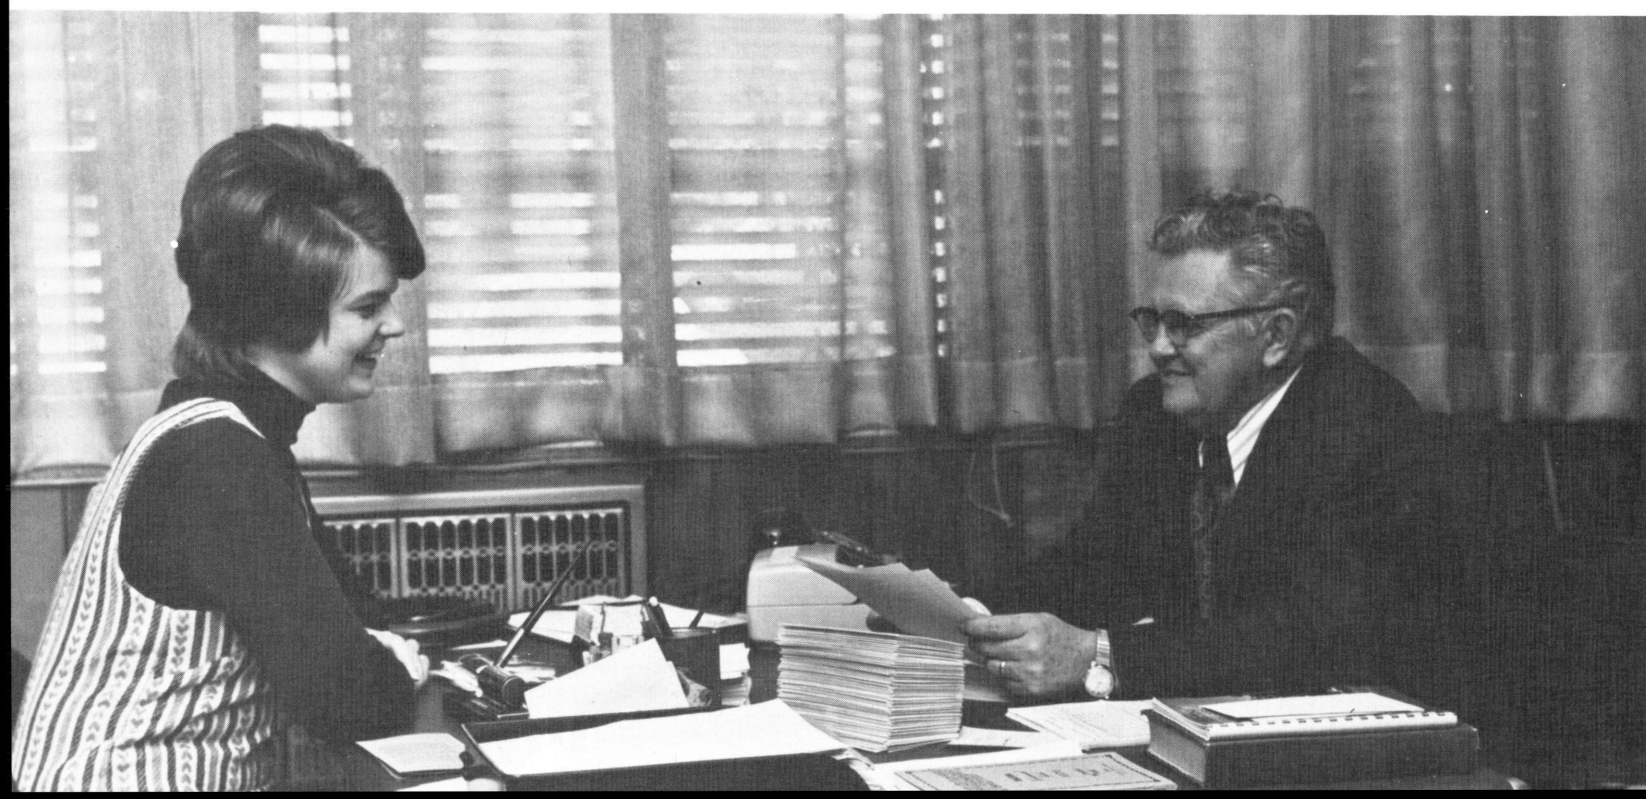

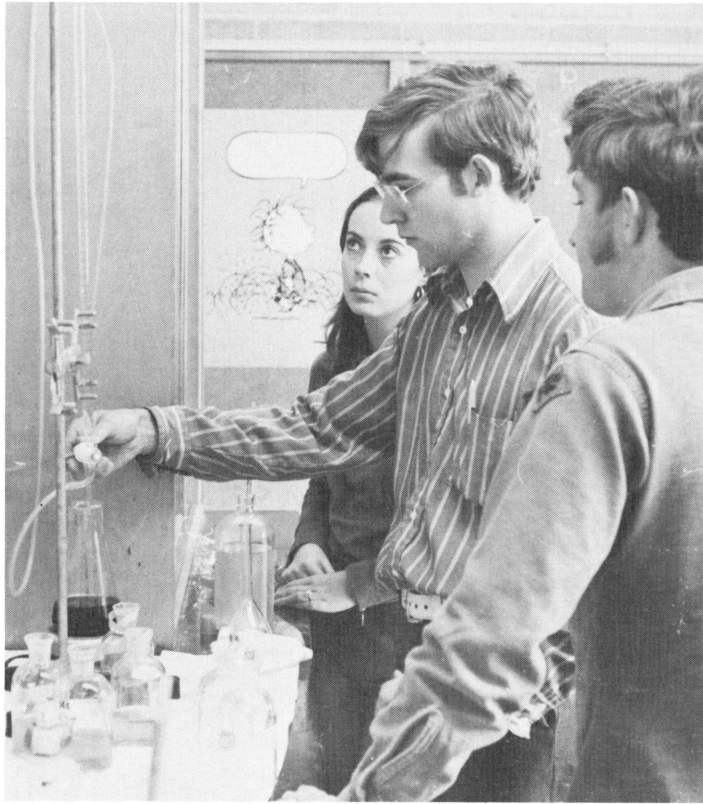

Involved in Martin's innovative academic program, students and faculty cooperate in a learning situation.

Studying is a basic part of student life. Cooperation among students, faculty, and administration makes Martin's unique course of study informative, interesting, and successful.

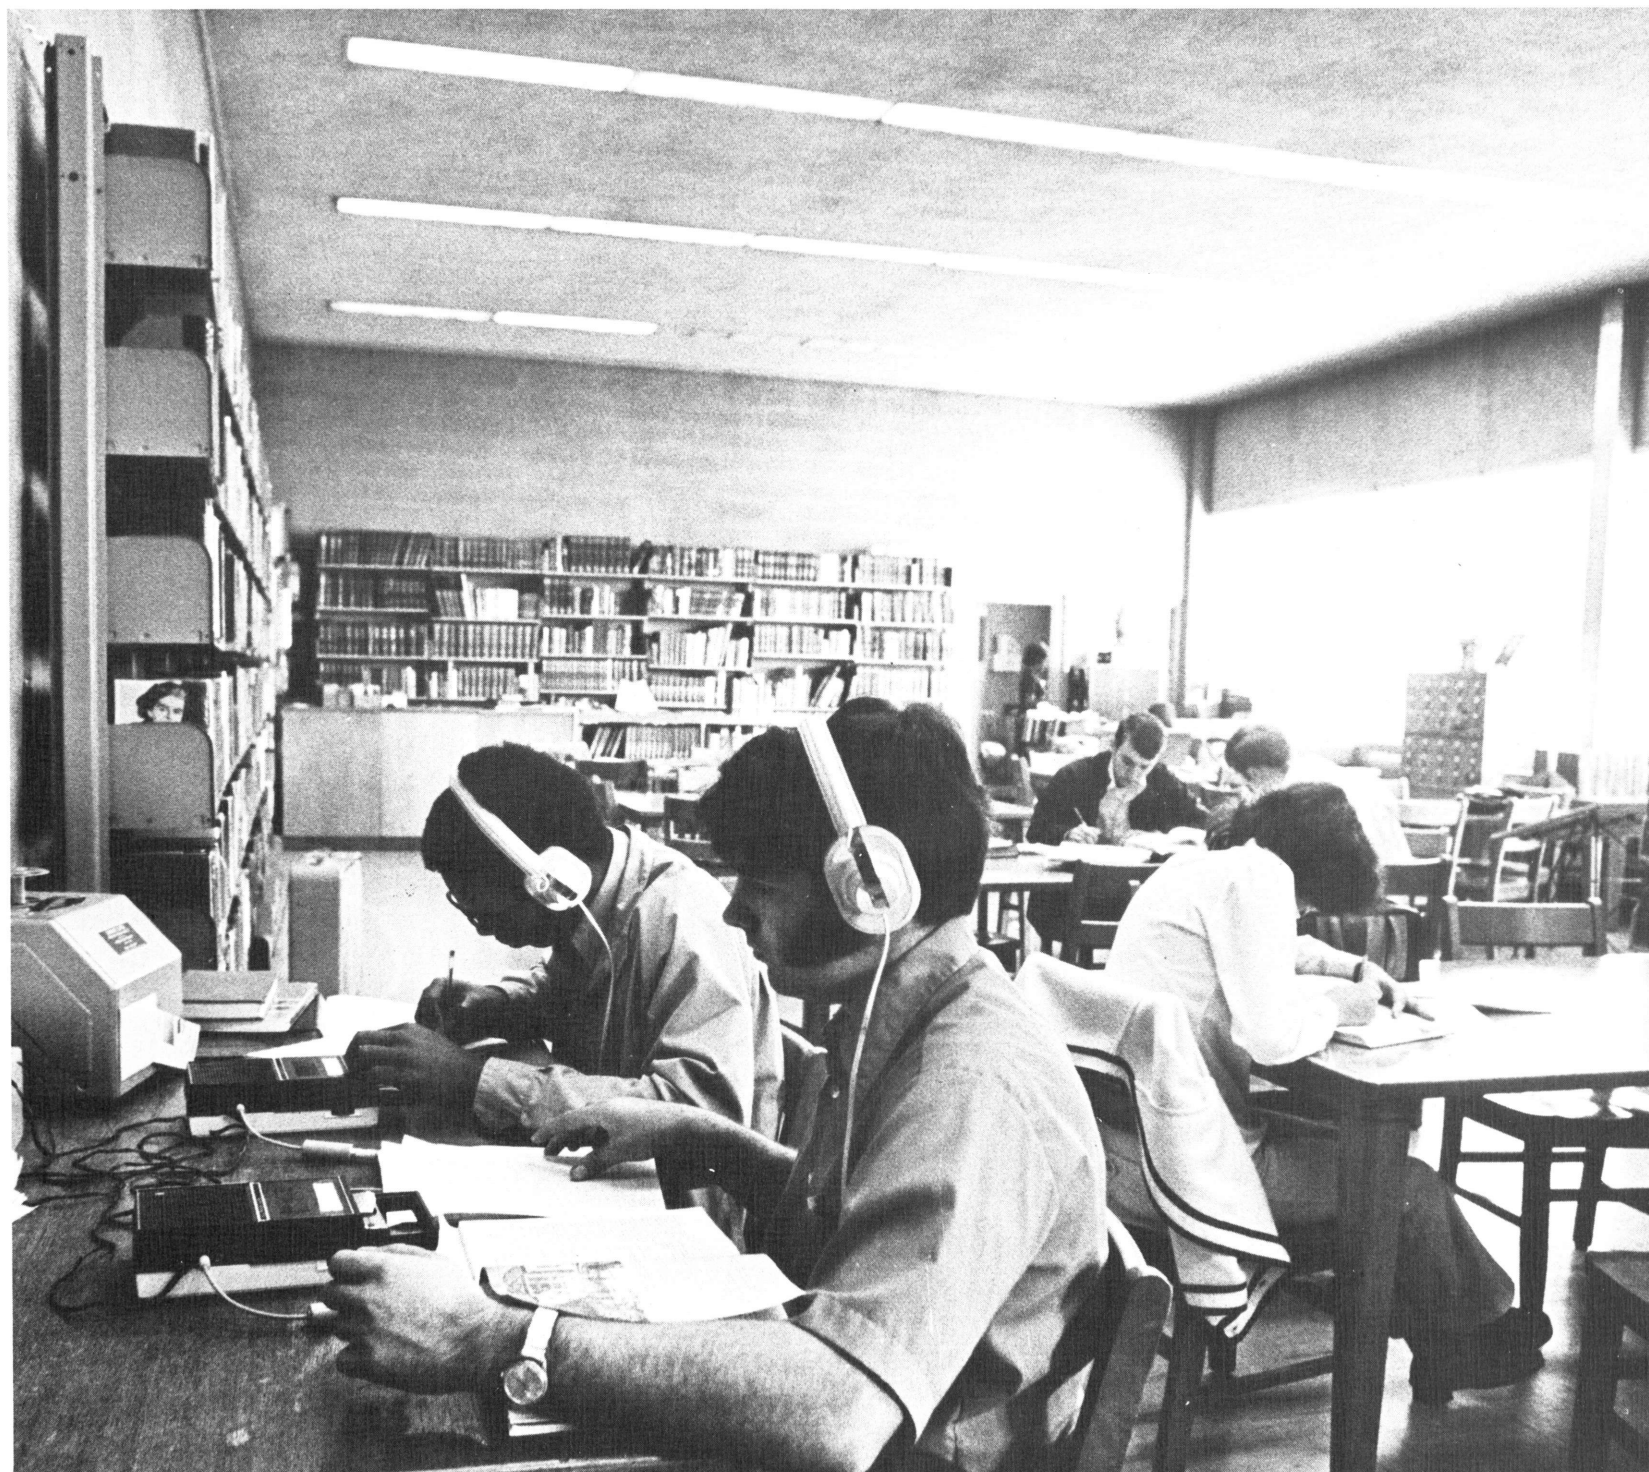

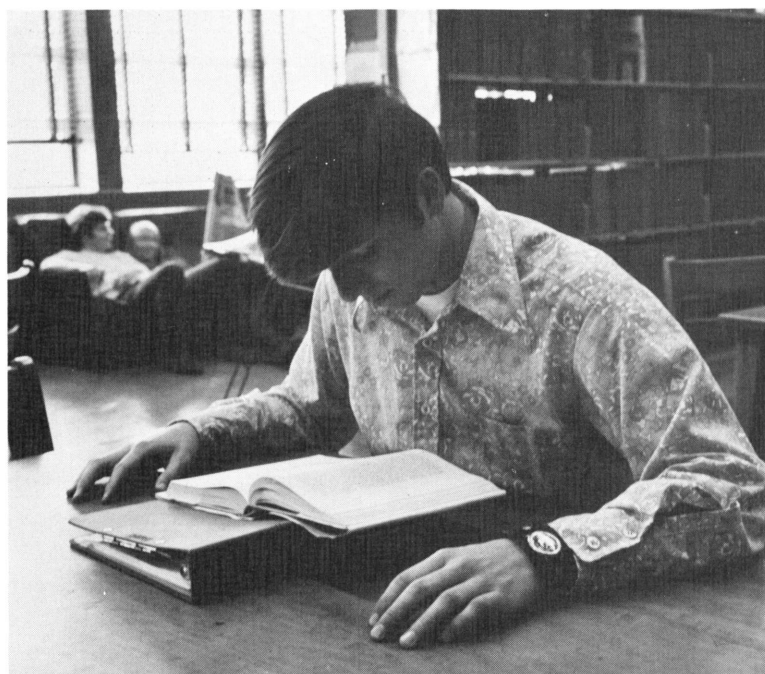

Students enjoy leisure time.

Individualized study takes learning beyond the classroom.

planning ...

understanding ...

and taking time for communication.

At Christmas time, students get into the true spirit of the season with a party and a parade. The SCA Christmas party for children from low income families was a big success. Several students participated in the annual town parade by designing and building a float recreating the nativity scene.

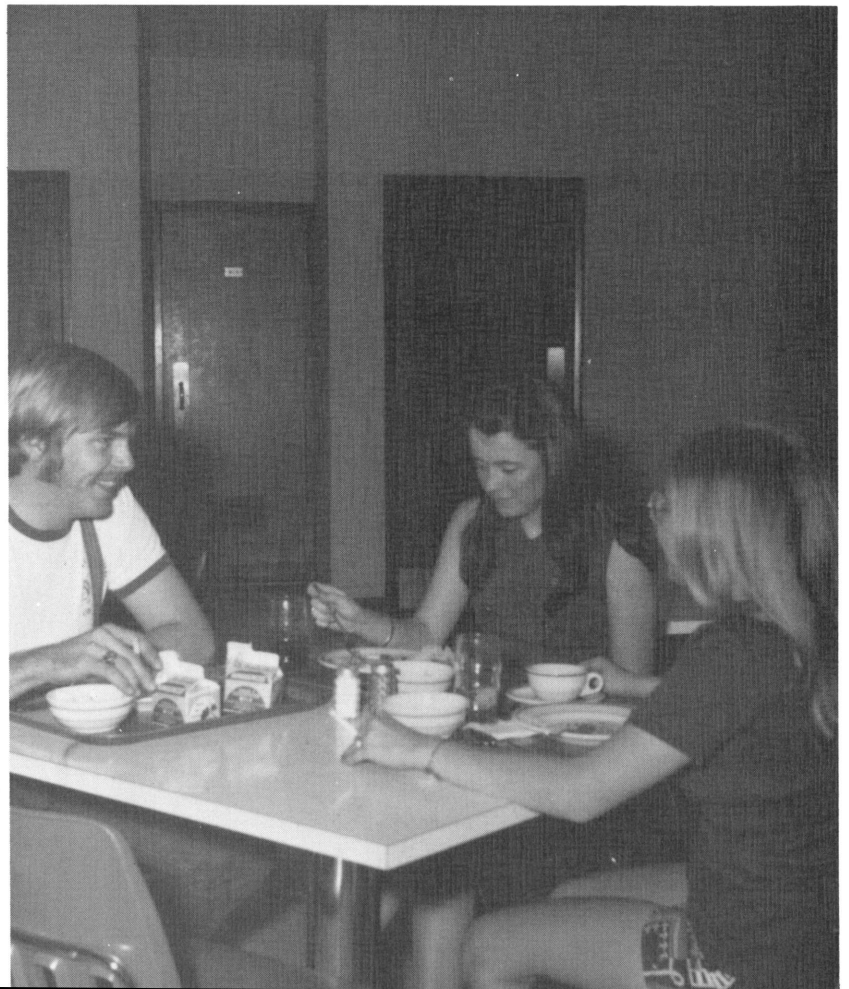

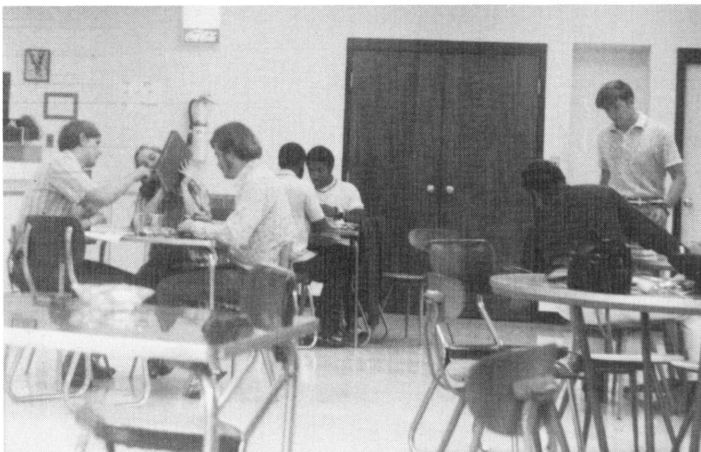

People who work and live here; beginning the day or ending it; carrying on business or relaxing for a few moments—all of these are an integral part of everyday life at Martin.

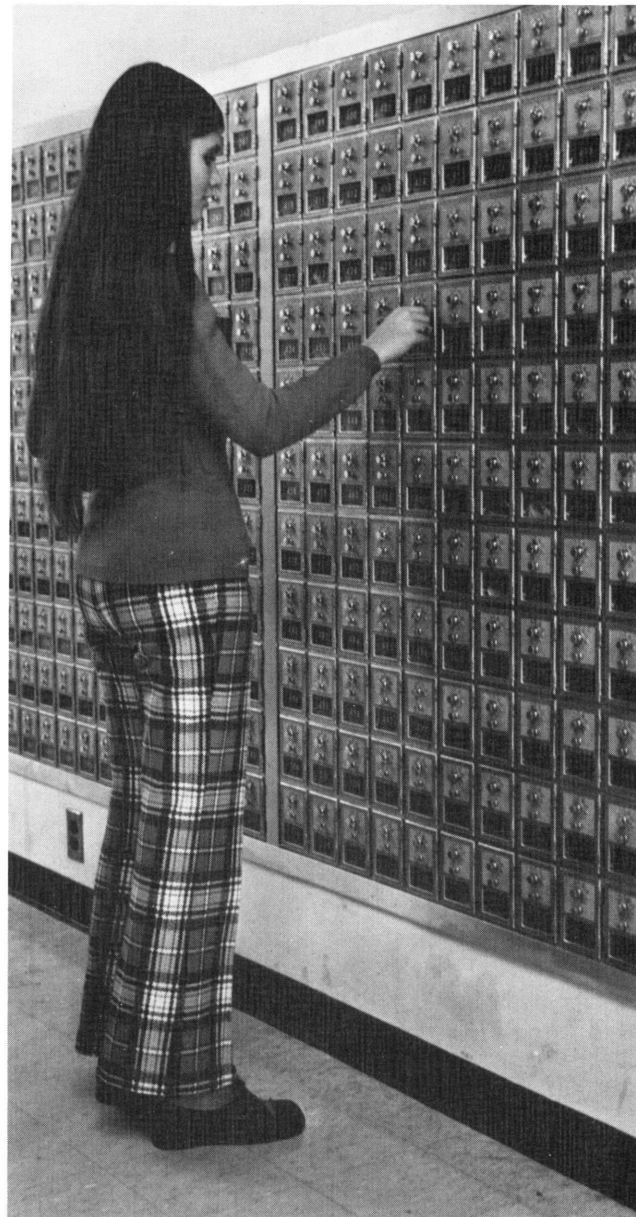

DRUDGERY—
writing a letter.

EXPECTATION—mailing it home, hoping it will bring news (and maybe some extra money.)

ANTICIPATION—
rushing to the mailbox to see the results of one's labor.

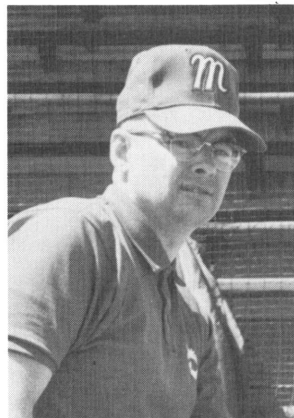

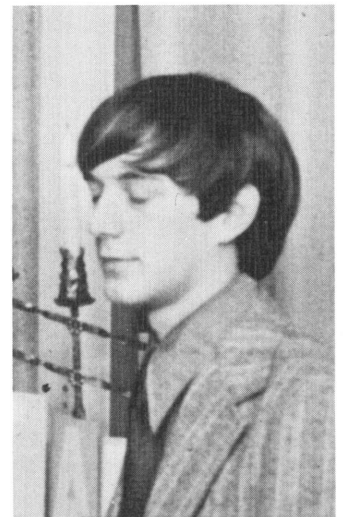

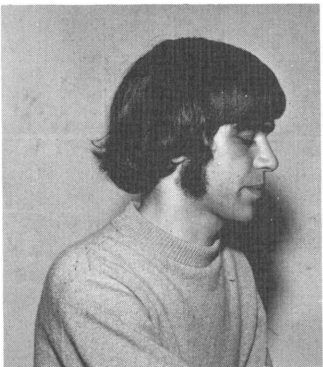

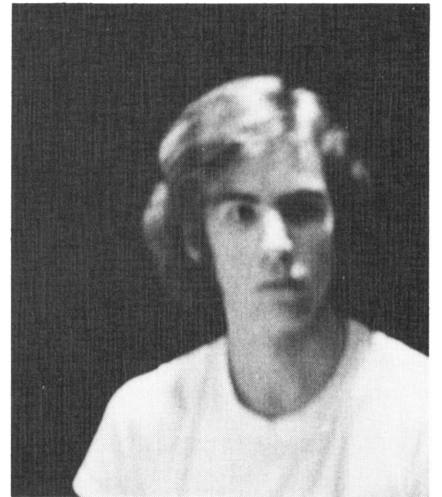

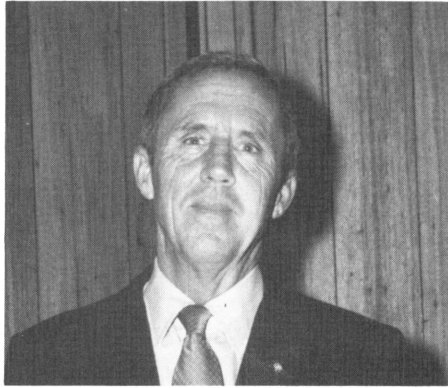

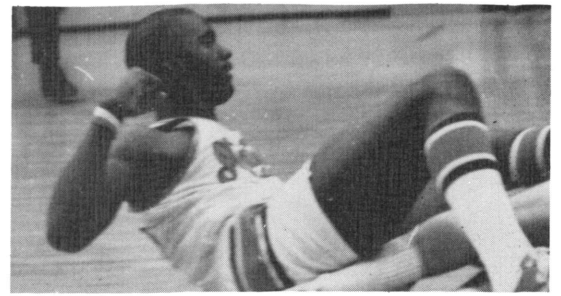

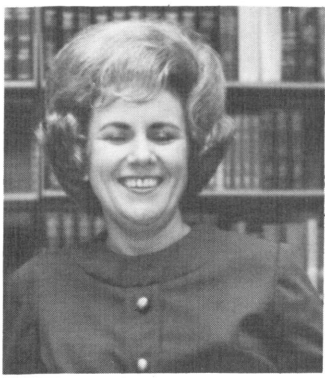

Dorms become a home away from home—an experience in living, working, and sharing.
